New age positional devices for children with cerebral palsy and other disabilities can be easily customised to suit the individual children and adjusted by the parent and care giver according to the child's growth.

The special chair improves child's sitting posture and helps them engage in self-care, play activity and this has a meaningful impact on child and the family. Handing over such positional devices to children from lower economic strata at the Ability Rehabilitation Centre here on Thursday, HRD Minister Ganta Srinivasa Rao lauded the efforts of The Ability People director Dilip Patro for treating disability as a challenge and serving others. He promised to get the government support for the programmes taken up by the civil society organisation dedicated to help rehabilitate accident victims and other persons with disabilities.

Visakhapatnam South MLA Vasupalli Ganesh Kumar also participated in the distribution programme.

The Ability People with technical support of its partner Mobility India of Bengaluru has provided 25 developmental aids to children with special needs on Thursday. "During the programme we have indentified and selected the beneficiaries who are economically backward, who cannot afford high quality and low weight adaptive and positional devices. The organisation, after assessing the beneficiaries, will provide the appropriate aids taking into consideration his/her requirements and needs. Providing of these aid and appliances is part of the organisation's efforts to widen its services to the children with special needs and people with learning disabilities," Mr. Patro said.
